The New Year's resolution dates all the way back to 153 BC. The early Roman mythological king Janus (hence January) had 2 faces, one looking back at the last year and one looking forward to the future. It is Janus that became the symbol for the resolutions that we make today. A resolution is not a wish, but a goal to set for the upcoming year. If you or your child have not made one yet, then I have just the one for you.

Resolution: Improve manners and etiquette.

Liberty's first character education assembly guest speaker was Daniel Webb from the Denver Cotillion. Daniel did a superb job of speaking with our students and modeling speaking etiquette and social prowess. I would encourage you to check out their website at www.cotillion.com or pick up a flier in the front office. The Fort Collins Cotillion will be hosting classes beginning on January 22nd. This would be a great opportunity for your children and a great resolution. Janus would be proud.

Steaming Into The New Year By: Bob Schaffer, LCS Principal

Water at 211 degrees Fahrenheit is just hot water. At 212 degrees (at sea level) it becomes steam and can power engines, heat skyscrapers, cook food and more.

It's remarkable how a specific, single, extra degree of heat can so profoundly transform the property of this essential and familiar substance – one we most often take for granted.

Many thanks to the multitude of Liberty parents, grandparents, faculty, Board members, administrators and friends who have contributed toward the school's year-end appeal for donations! We raised a respectable sum. And we need more.

If time just got away, and you forgot to respond, don't worry. We'll still take your contributions. Coincidentally, right now is an opportune time to drop off a check at the school's front desk, to mail one in, or contribute online at the school's website.

Asking for donations always seems like such an awkward proposition. But after many years of asking people to help fund campaigns, build charities and sustain our school, I've come to realize that few people typically donate without first being asked and told why the investment is a wise one.

And, when the cause is a righteous one, most people are grateful for the opportunity to pitch in, or even to write yet another check. As a parent of five Liberty-educated kids, I have come to regard our school as one of the most righteous causes there is.

Even today, spirits are high in our hallways and classrooms as students return to school with new Christmas clothes, the fresh academic slate of the new semester, and tall stories of holiday adventure. They're off and started on the next phase of a rigorous education in Colorado's best school.

Our students absolutely deserve a school that is better, stronger, more adaptive and more proficient than all the others. Extra funding from parents allows us to produce more remarkable results – even with the paucity of public funding Liberty receives when compared to regular public schools. Achieving these high expectations cannot be taken for granted.

As such, charitable donations make up a rather important part of our school's annual budget. If your donation weren't truly important, trust me, we wouldn't raise the awkward proposition of asking for it.

Perhaps your New-Year resolutions entail doing more to improve Colorado's best school and to propel the building of Colorado's best high school. If so, contributing to Liberty is a perfect and meaningful way of accomplishing both.

Your donation may well indeed be the specific, single, extra degree of effort needed to profoundly transform Liberty. Without the greater efforts and added energy of all Liberty parents, our school would likely be just another familiar public institution – a warm place perhaps, but inadequate to making steam.

Grandparents Corner By: Ed Haynes, Chairman of the Liberty Grandparents Club

As I said in a previous Grandparents Corner, our grandchildren are receiving a superior education at Liberty Common Schools. A conversation my 3rd grade grandson, Cooper, and I had during the holiday break illustrates this fact.

We were talking about what he was learning at school. He said 'adverbs.' Then he sang me a song containing 51 of the most common adverbs. I had no idea there were that many. To illustrate his knowledge he started diagramming sentences!

I was stunned. I remember diagramming sentences as a junior in high school. This knowledge was his. It was no flash-in-the-pan classroom lesson. He knew the definitions and the rules of adverb usage.

I encourage every grandparent who has had similar experiences with your grandchildren about their Liberty Common Schools educational experiences to share those stories with us in this column.

Oh, and thanks to all the faculty, staff and administration for providing such a magnificent education to our grandchildren.
